

Practice Active Shooter Response

Law enforcement officers train for Active Shooter Response and Tactical Entry during training held recently in Williamston. Thirty-seven officers from agencies including Williamston PD, Anderson PD, SC State Constables, Richland County SO, Saluda County SO, SC Department of Natural Resources, Tri County Tech PD, Richland County SO, Fountain Inn PD, York County SO, and South Carolina Governor's School for Arts Public Safety received the "no cost" training.

For agencies from across the state

Williamston Police Department hosts law enforcement training

During the weekend of February 11-12, 2023, the Williamston Police Department hosted vital law enforcement training attended by law enforcement agencies across the state. The United States Deputy Sheriff's Association provided training in Active Shooter Response and Tactical Entry. The United States Deputy Sheriff's Association (USDASA) is a 501(c)(3) national non-profit organization dedicated to the assistance and support of law enforcement, their families, and their communities. USDASA has provided this nationally acclaimed cutting-edge training to thousands of police and military across the US which is described as "life-changing".

Included in the cadre of instructors were Mike Willis, Law Enforcement National Training and Program Director, David Hinners, Executive Director and National Trainer, and Brian Boling, National Trainer for the organization.

Thirty-seven officers received "no cost" training over the weekend from agencies including Williamston PD, Anderson PD, SC State Constables, Richland County SO, Saluda County SO, SC Department of Natural Resources, Tri County Tech PD, Richland County SO, Fountain Inn PD, York County

Tactical entry training

The Williamston Police Department recently hosted law enforcement training attended by law enforcement agencies from across the